Dragon Theatre's 15th Season to Open With a Greek Classic

Due to a change in circumstances, the Dragon Productions Theatre Company's 2015 season will open with the 2nd Stages production of The Libation Bearers by Aeschylus and not Kid-Simple: a radio play in the flesh as previously announced.

Orestes returns home from exile upon learning that his mother, Clytemnestra, has murdered his father, King Agamemnon, and placed her lover on the throne of Argos. Orestes seeks out his sister, Electra, and together they embark on a plan to seek bloody justice for his father. A dramatic family story that shows how violence begets violence, The Libation Bearers, written by Aeschylus, the father of tragedy, is the second play in the historic Orestia trilogy. Though it was first performed in 458 BCE, the Orestia's influences can be seen in everything from Shakespeare to O'Neill and is the template for the modern trilogy.

WHO: Written by Aeschylus; produced and directed by Tunuviel Luv.
